

MACROSCIOLOGICAL STRUCTURE

• Theory 2 more likely

● paradoxical

MACROSOCIOLOGICAL THEORY OF STRUCTURE

A large, dark silhouette of a balance scale is centered in the background. The scale is tilted, with the right pan being higher than the left. Inside the left pan, there is a silhouette of a person standing. Inside the right pan, there is a silhouette of a group of people, possibly a crowd or a family, sitting or standing together. The background is a dark, solid color.

- Theory 2: Greater inequality also makes it more likely that people of different statuses will interact.
- If this seems paradoxical, consider that the more class difference there is, the more likely that two people will belong to different classes.
- (The subway is a great equalizer in this sense.)

MACROSOCIOLOGICAL THEORY OF STRUCTURE

