

DATABASES ARE EVERYWHERE

Consider YouTube

You run a query for "funny cats." You get back list of videos and some description from the database.

These are example queries: number of results, list of videos, number of video views.

YouTube is just one of a myriad of examples that we interact with daily that uses databases.

