

GROUPS AND ORGANIZATIONS

- Organizations have many attributes that apply to individual actors: size, age, personality (think of corporate cultures), and history.
- They perform actions and develop behaviors (organizational policies).
- However, they can easily have parts broken off or added to without fundamentally changing them, unlike most individual actors.
- Organizations have goals, internal structure, technology, resources (human and material), surrounding environment.

ORGANIZATIONS

