

Examples of Symbolic Interactionism

- They then develop what it means to be a boy or a girl by their interactions with adults, toys, and other external influences.
- Being a boy or being a girl is socially constructed through the language provided to children.
- Their innate desire to please drives an inner dialogue about how to behave in that socially constructed manner.

AFTER TODAY, YOU SHOULD BE ABLE TO EXPLAIN:

