

ENIN
OH SI FUG
LOBRTE ALQU
PRAESNT FUGAT
VENAM MILESTI

US BORDER PATROL

social classes shape self-identity

actualization value self-

CLASS INEQUALITY

- In the early 2000s, sociologists began studying how social classes shape self-identity.
- E.g., higher social classes tend to value self-actualization and deliberate cultivation rather than “natural” growth when it comes to child-rearing.
- One remaining question is whether or not groups define themselves in relation to one Other, or a multiplicity of Others.

ETHNIC/RACIAL INEQUALITY

