- Fundamental attribution error

- example poor lazy systemic economic policies unequally allocate resources.

ATTRIBUTION ERROR

- Fundamental attribution error is “the general tendency to overestimate the importance of personal or dispositional factors relative to environmental influences” when we account for the behavior of others.
- In other words, we blame the victim, not the system.
- One example is the idea that people are poor because they are lazy, rather than because systemic economic policies unequally allocate resources.
