IEMP MODEL

- Mann's focuses on four main organizational networks—ideological, economic, military, and political—as the building blocks for power structures, called the IEMP Model.
- These four networks happen to be the most useful organizational bases for generating power.

IEMP MODEL

- “Their primacy comes not from the strength of human desires for ideological, economic, military, or political satisfaction but from the particular organizational means each possesses to [achieve goals], whatever they may be.”
- People will fight to hold on to their organizations, so they can quickly become hierarchical and/or fierce when they begin to grow larger or face an outside threat.
