a hypothetical STATUS SET

beliefs and norms about being a child and obligations to parents daughter

beliefs and norms about education and school student

beliefs and norms about spouses

wife

worker

beliefs and norms about the workplace beliefs and norms about parenting

mother

church member

beliefs and norms about religion and supernatural resident

beliefs and norms about community and neighbourhood citizen

beliefs and norms about politics and government
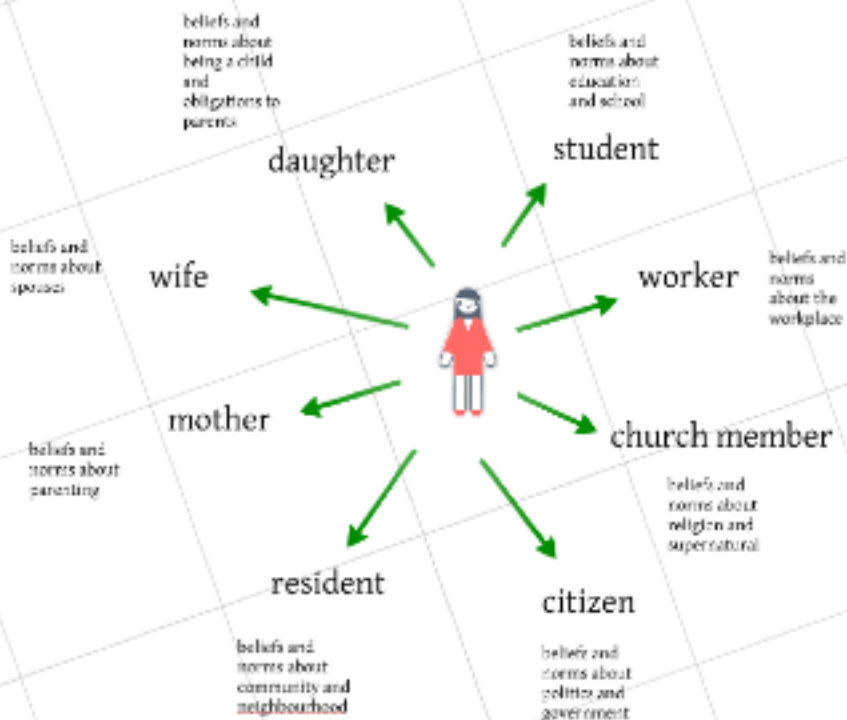

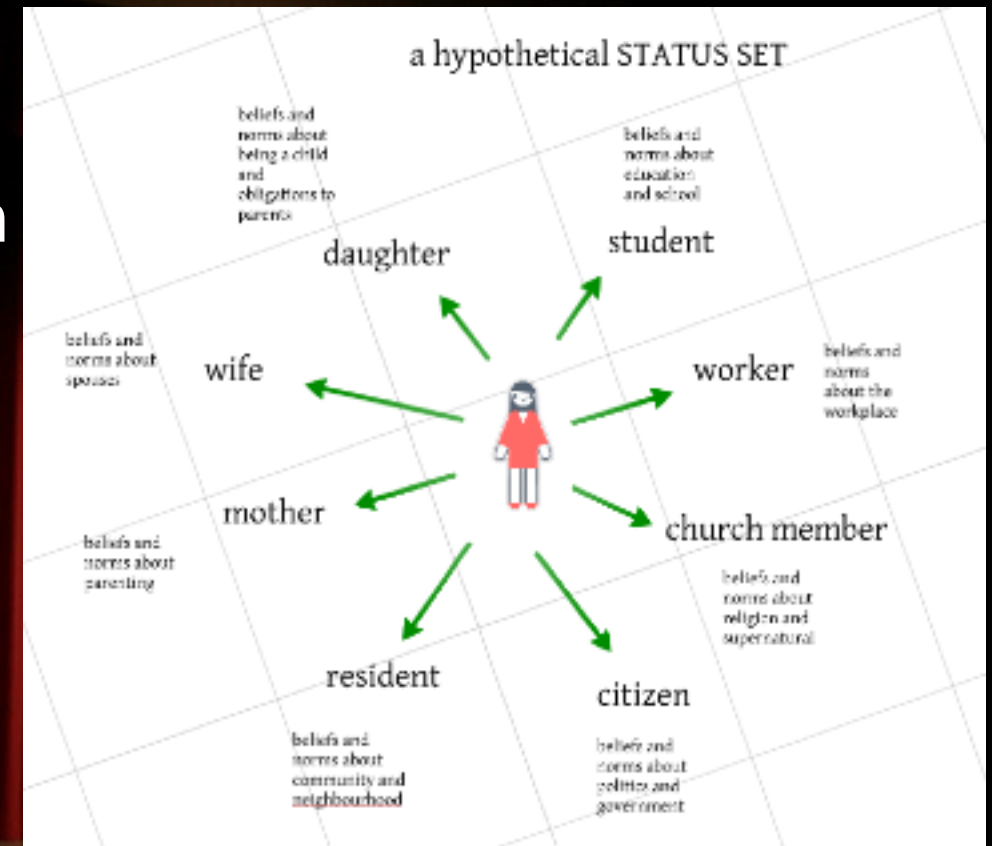

ROLE STATUS

- We use the status-role to classify and clarify positions within societies.

- People can be 'socialized' into certain roles and internalize them.

- Alternatively, role-complements are proactive in grooming others for certain roles.

- Rewards and negative consequences motivate members of a society to adopt their expected roles.

a hypothetical STATUS SET

ROLE STATUS